

Conference vs. summit?

This week the eyes of the world will turn toward Reykjavik, Iceland as U.S. President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev meet in arms control talks. In a much smaller way the eyes of the world looked toward Salt Lake City this past weekend and heard the messages of Christ-anointed spokesmen. How much more important to the people of the world are the messages of general conferences when compared to the activities of summit conferences?

The message of the prophet-leader of the

UNIVERSE OPINION

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Ezra Taft Benson, was a reaffirmation to read, study and apply the principles of the Book of Mormon, Another Testament for Jesus Christ. The book teaches that personal peace comes through belief in Jesus Christ as savior.

The responsibility of all Latter-day Saints is to apply conference counsel in their personal lives. To some it may mean to make an effort to avoid patronizing stories on Sunday or to stop viewing R-rated movies. To others it may mean to set goals for daily reading of the Book of Mormon or for increased member-missionary service.

We must recognize that world peace will be accomplished as Christ's followers share and apply His message of love, understanding and truth throughout the world.

The above is the opinion of the Editorial Board of The Daily Universe, which consists of the editor, the editorial page editor, a student staff member, a teacher of opinion writing, and the associate publisher; the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of Brigham Young University, its administering church, its student body or sponsoring church. The Board meets Thursdays at 1 p.m. in 562 ELWC. The meeting is open to the public.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Help Contras

Editor:

I have two objections to James Lyon's suggestion regarding Nicaragua (Viewpoints, Oct. 1) that "we should not support either side, particularly in light of our previous dealings in the region." First, he characterizes these previous dealings as an unending legacy of Wall St. imperialism and CIA conspiracies. This incomplete description results from the typical "blame America first" mentality coupled with the unsupported revisionist history of the American Left. Second, his opposition to the Truman and Reagan Doctrines — that the U.S. should assist indigenous democratic movement — on moral grounds is curious. It seems proper that if the Contras are willing to risk their lives for independence and reform, our country should be morally motivated to help.

Violetta Chamorro, publisher of the recently closed-down newspaper, La Prensa, and a former Sandinista leader herself, pleaded: "With all my heart, I tell you it is worse now than it was in the times of the Sonzoza dictatorship." Despite past improprieties of the U.S., we should not hesitate to take action when it is right.

The Bells

Editor:

The Bells, the bells! What is this, funeral music? It sure is going to be the death of us! Granted, this may be a talent — but does he have to play his scales? Living in campus housing puts the bells in our lounge, and our kitchen — not to mention the bathrooms. One 45-minute concert was advertised in the paper, but we have listened to the concert for days now. We can handle the hourly update, even the noon concert, but when the music goes on all day we find it extremely difficult to concentrate on our studies. We do, however, enjoy the great variety of music from "Row, Row, Row Your Boat" during dinner, to "Home, Home on the Range" while we study, and ending with "If I Were a Rich Man" as we attempt to sleep. "Sunrise, Sunset" is the highlight for our apartment since it sums up our experience with the eternal bells.

Absurd application

Editor:

The editorial [letter] of Msgrs. Thatcher, Fuller and Moreno on Sept. 29 was wholly void of any intelligent comment. They assert that the administration denies them their freedom of speech guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution. Has it ever occurred to them that the Constitution prohibits Congress, not BYU, from abridging the freedom of speech?

The Constitution is an inspired document and its principles are good. But to apply the Constitution to all organizations is absurd. To take their incredibly naive application of the Constitution to its limit, parents could not silence their children for fear of violating the children's freedom of speech. (Would spanking then be a cruel and unusual punishment, a violation of the Eighth Amendment?)

Hawaiian Heritage?

Editor:

In response to "Surf, sand and sea; not all that it's cracked up to be" by Barbie Bawgus (Mon., Sept. 29) — I agree wholeheartedly. I was born and raised in Honolulu and each of my Stake Youth Conferences has been spent in upgrading the BYU-Hawaii campus.

My roommate and I plan on attending BYU-HI this coming Winter semester. As sophomores who love all Heritage Halls has to offer, we are not really looking forward to digesting the cafeteria food I swallowed at my Youth Conferences. The small cubicles will also be hard to get used to after Heritage.

Why doesn't the church at least remodel BYU-HI's dorms and food services a bit? They've done an impressive job on Heritage Halls. Will there ever be a "Heritage Halls" in Hawaii? Since so many students are now enjoying BYU Hawaii and all it has to offer, something really should be done.

Human rights: be a participant

Be an active listener. Prepare a list of questions about human rights in South Africa, for example, then listen for answers from Randall Robinson and Leslie Labuschagne.

Bring along a pencil and notepad. Don't record every word, but capture each speaker's main arguments and jot down questions as the speech progresses. Ask questions! Ask: "Who are your sources?" "Why do you support this viewpoint?" "How recent is your information?"

— Steve Hawkins

"What are your solutions?" Most importantly, ask, "What can I do in Provo, Utah to support human rights around the world?" Demand that the speakers present solutions; then later get together with friends come up with some solutions of your own.

The Human Rights Symposium takes the first step by educating us about the problems of human rights. Let's take the second step by putting to work some reasonable solutions.

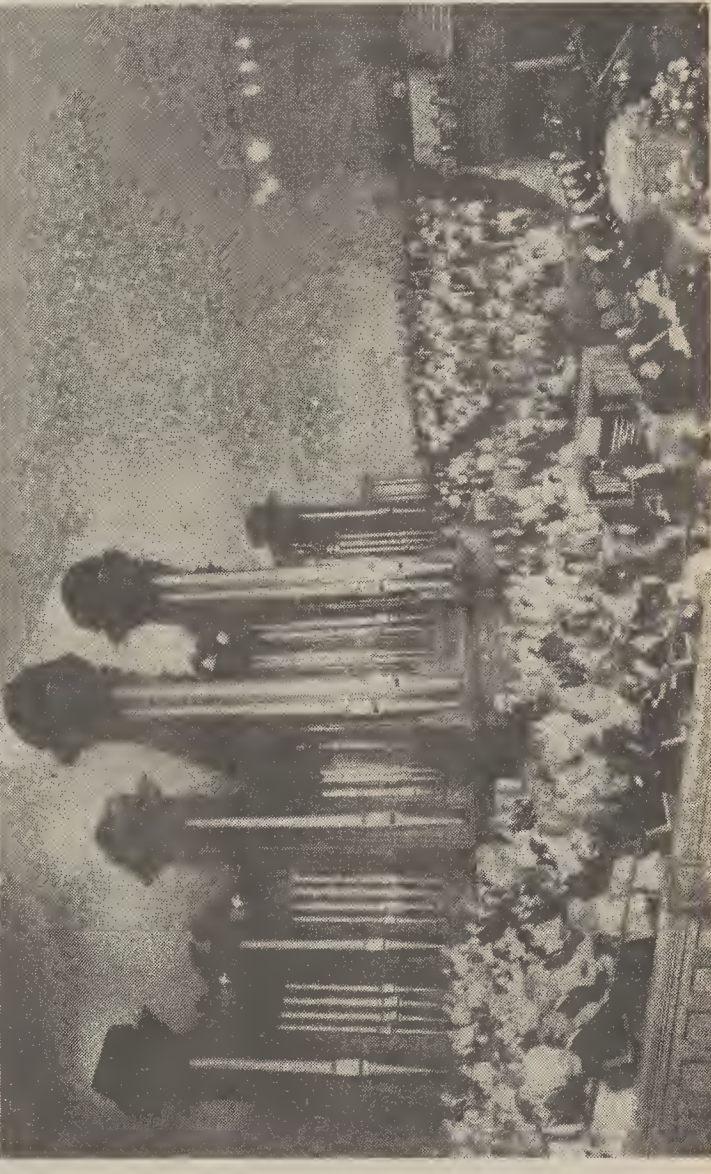

— Steve Hawkins

Members of the First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints show brotherhood during Saturday evening's priesthood session.

Heritage and tradition are evident in Temple Square during the 156th Semi-Annual General Conference.

Members of the LDS Church received counsel and instruction during five weekend conference sessions.

Warm weather provided comfortable atmosphere for the overflow crowds of conference-goers in Temple Square.

October Conference

Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints sustained a new member of the Council of Twelve Apostles during the 156th Semi-Annual General Conference, that took place Oct. 4-5 on Temple Square in Salt Lake City.

Elder Joseph B. Wirthlin was called as the newest member of the Council. Elder Hugh W. Pinnock was sustained to the presidency of the First Quorum of Seventy, succeeding Wirthlin in that position.

At the general priesthood session on Oct. 4, President Ezra Taft Benson announced that stake seventies quorums would be disbanded and members would return to elders quorums.

Church members were all urged to continue to strive to understand and live the basic principles of the gospel: to read the Book of Mormon and other scriptures, to love and serve their neighbors, to do missionary work, and to seek joy in their lives through good works and righteousness, and to work, in general, toward greater personal worthiness.

The semi-annual general conference gives church members an opportunity — for some, a rare opportunity — to listen to the words and counsel of their prophet and other prominent church leaders.

Nancy Reagan 'upstages' concert pianist

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Nancy Reagan took a tumble from the stage but was unhurt during a concert by pianist Vladimir Horowitz at the White House Sunday.

President Reagan, after determining that his wife was all right, seized the occasion for a quip.

The incident occurred after Horowitz's program as the president was speaking.

The first lady apparently nudged her chair too close to the edge of the stage while smoothing her skirt. As the audience gasped, Mrs. Reagan's chair fell into a flower box, which borders the two-riser stage, and then onto the carpeted floor.

The first lady promptly rose, assured Reagan and others that she was unhurt, and resumed her seat to applause from the crowd of about 200 in the White House East Room.

"Honey," said Reagan, "I told you to do that only if I didn't get any applause."

Horowitz, 82, who was still sitting on stage, put his arm around the first lady and hugged her during the rest of the president's remarks.

Soviet dissident arrives in America

NEW YORK (AP) — Yuri Orlov, jailed and exiled to Siberia for nearly a decade because of his human rights activities, arrived with his wife Sunday to begin a new life in the United States.

Orlov, 62, and his wife Irina, 40, were allowed to depart from the Soviet Union under a superpower agreement under which American reporter Nicholas Daniloff and Soviet U.N. employee Gennadiy Zakharov were allowed to return to their home countries.

Orlov had been imprisoned for his human rights activities in the 1970's. He was co-founder of an unofficial group that monitored Soviet compliance with the Helsinki Final Act. Before his arrest, Orlov was one of the Soviet Union's best known dissidents.

"I'm very glad I have begun a free life," said Orlov through an interpreter when he arrived at John F. Kennedy International Airport. "I can say whatever I want freely. Now I can speak my mind about how the Soviet Union should develop."

As for his plans in his new home, Orlov said, "I promise not only to engage in scientific research but to go on defending the rights of Soviet people."

Soviet submarine "dead in water"

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet nuclear-powered submarine remained "dead in the water" in the Atlantic Sunday but no smoke was seen spewing from the stricken ship, indicating a fire on board had been extinguished, Pentagon officials said.

Most of the crew members were evacuated to nearby Soviet merchant ships, and a U.S. Navy tug was in the area ready to assist if needed, officials said.

"As near as we can tell, the fire has been extinguished," said a Pentagon source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, reported that fire broke out Friday morning on the sub 620 miles northeast of Bermuda. The announcement said three people were killed but there was no danger of nuclear explosion or radiation contamination.

The Symposium begins Tuesday at 11 a.m. when Rahmatullah Mehr, president of the Afgan Refugee Relief Association, will speak on human rights violations in Afghanistan.

Randall Robinson will speak on South African human rights at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the ELWC Main Ballroom.

sioner of LDS Social Services, Val MacMurray, will speak on "Christianity and Human Rights" at 11 a.m. Thursday in 321, ELWC.

Fire partially guts Morris Cafeteria

By DONALD W. MEYERS
Universe Staff Writer

Deseret Towers residents woke up to the news that the north cafeteria of the George Albert Morris Center was partially gutted by an electrical fire early Friday morning.

According to Paul Richards, of the BYU Public Communications Office, the fire was reported at approximately 2:57 a.m. "The Provo City Fire Department responded in a very short time, and they responded in an excellent manner."

Richards also commended the fire department for their efficiency. "They did a very good job at containing the fire and minimizing the water damage, which sometimes does more damage than the fire does," Richards said.

The fire is believed to have been caused by an electrical short in a deep-fryer. "It looks like there was possibly, as near as we can find out, an electrical short in one of our deep fryers," said Ron Schouten, manager of the Morris Center cafeterias. "I got a phone call this morning at 3:15, and I got over here by 3:25, and the fire itself was out. Apparently, as you can see, things got pretty hot here," Schouten said, standing inside the charred cafeteria. In addition to the charred walls and the acrid smell of smoke, computer terminals and seats showed signs of heat damage.

Schouten said that a steel door between the north and south cafeteria also contributed to containing the damage.

Schouten said the south cafeteria served dinners that evening, while Friday's breakfast and lunch were served at the George Q. Cannon Center at Helaman Halls.

Repairs will take a while. Schouten said, "It will be approximately two to three months before (north cafeteria) will be back in operation." In the meantime residents of DT will be using the south cafeteria, said Schouten said would be tight quarters and advised residents to leave quarters quickly, so as to avoid overcrowding.

Margaret Morris, a junior in Toppenish, Wa., majoring in elementary education, said that she did like the idea of only using one cafeteria. "I would much rather be able to get through the lines so I can get my class, and do what I need to do,

To protect your privacy, don't waste words with unwanted callers.

Your phone is part of your home. And at Mountain Bell, we understand that when someone uses your phone to invade your privacy, it's like an unwanted visitor coming through your front door. But we want you to know that you can have the last word with these callers. By not wasting any words with them at all.

If the caller is a salesperson using a hard sell, you don't have to listen. Just say you're not interested, and hang up.

If you get an obscene call, or the caller remains silent, don't stop to listen. Above all, don't talk to them. Hang up on their hang-ups. And if these callers keep after you or threaten you, get in touch right away with the police and your local Mountain Bell service representative. We'll help you find other ways to deal with these calls.

No matter what kind of unwanted calls you get, let your actions speak louder than their words. By hanging up. It's the best way we know to protect the privacy of your home. And your phone.

"The Principles of Pluralism and Toleration"

This lecture builds on one to be given Monday, October 6, at 3 p.m. in 250 SWKT entitled "The Condition of Cohesion and Continuity in Society." Both addresses are part of a colloquium—free and open to the public—entitled "The Public Household: A New Definition of America."

In this second lecture, Professor Bell turns his attention from the post-industrial society and the contradictions emerging in our culture to the matter of the cultural and symbolic values that guide our behavior in society. He will probe the interplay between the public and private spheres of life in America, asking whether the most fundamentally important values can be preserved except through the successful operation of our nation's pluralistic communities, and whether the processes of the state pose potential harm to these values, to the cohesion and coherence of our society, and to individual liberty.

Selected readings are available in the HBL Reserve Library under the name of Daniel Bell.

Elder Joseph B. Wirthlin, newly sustained member of The Council of Twelve of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, speaks during Sunday afternoon's session of general conference.

Church members urged to read Book of Mormon

By REBECCA THOMPSON
Universe Staff Writer

Members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints heard the familiar, semi-annual greeting of Gordon B. Hinckley, first counselor in the First Presidency, welcoming them to the first session of the 156th Semi-Annual General Conference of the LDS Church.

President Benson opened the session, addressing the need for LDS Church members to read and study the Book of Mormon, Another Testament for Jesus Christ.

The early Saints were rebuked for treating the Book of Mormon lightly and bringing the Church under condemnation, he said. "Today's Saints are equally responsible for treating these holy scriptures properly."

He gave three reasons for Saints to make the Book of Mormon a lifetime study. "First, the Book of Mormon is the keystone of our religion — the Church stands or falls based on its truthfulness . . . Second, it was written for our day — Mormon and others wrote of seeing our day and writing for our trials . . . Third, it can bring one closer to God — it enables us to better our lives with its power."

Those receiving it in faith are promised a crown of eternal glory, while those hardening their hearts will bring condemnation on themselves, he said. "I implore you with all my heart that you consider with great solemnity the importance of the Book of Mormon to you individually and to the Church collectively," said President Benson.

Elder James E. Faust of the LDS Council of Twelve then spoke on unwanted messages, urging members to heed the counsel of the Prophet.

He explained that Jesus taught difficult lessons people did not want to hear. He cited keeping the Sabbath day holy and honoring one's parents as examples of transcendent messages the world has wished not to hear throughout the ages. "The still, small voice can call us to change our lives and it's never too late to change," said Elder Faust.

Expressing concern for people who unwisely choose those whose guidance and example they follow, Marion D. Hanks of the First Quorum of Seventy spoke about freedom of choice.

He told of a young man who subjected himself to severe judgement and pain with an unwise choice of companions. He then indicated that most people have sound sources and that great power comes with love and trust. "Mortal men have limitations. The Holy One of Israel is the only one we can trust for salvation," said Elder Hanks.

Marvin J. Ashton of the Council of Twelve compared bad habits to chains which restrict personal growth. "The chains of habit are too strong to be felt until they are too strong to break," said Elder Ashton. "These chains can only be broken by people of courage and commitment."

Boyd K. Packer of the Council of Twelve concluded the session, speaking on the innocence of children and their parents' responsibility to them.

He declared "original sin" and child baptism as two doctrines that misrepresent children and he warned against transgressions affecting the lives of innocent children.

"The Lord has said, 'He that receiveth a little child, receiveth me,'" said Elder Packer.

management and was a prominent business leader in Salt Lake City until his call as a General Authority.

Jason Buck and Thor Salanoa of BYU wrap up on Colorado State runningback Steve Bartalo. Bartalo keyed the Rams' upset of the Cougars, scoring three touchdowns and running for 131 yards.

CSU uses balance in upset

By DAVID BUXTON
Assistant Sports Editor

Before Friday's game, BYU Head Coach LaVell Edwards said if the Cougars failed to control Ram runningback Steve Bartalo and quarterback Kelly Stouffer's passing attack, they would be in for a long evening.

Bartalo rushed for 131 yards, Stouffer passed for 262 more, and the prophecy was fulfilled. BYU's long evening culminated in a 24-21 loss to Colorado State.

The loss gives the Cougars a 1-1 mark in the WAC and also keeps alive Colorado State's hopes of at least a share of the title with the same record. It also tightens up the WAC race considerably and forces BYU into a more aggressive position.

"Whoever wins the conference is not going to go undefeated," Edwards said after the game, "... we're just going to have to do it the hard way."

San Diego State (2-0) and Wyoming (1-0) are now the only teams in the WAC without a conference loss.

The crowd of 64,633 was electric during the unusual night game. However, the Cougars didn't seem as fired up and played mediocre football typical of this season. Again, BYU was unable to deliver to their opponent the crushing blows typical of BYU games in recent years.

"It was just one of those bad nights. We made a lot of mistakes and had a lot of penalties," Edwards said.

At times it looked like the referees were playing flag football, throwing their penalty indicators seemingly on every other play. BYU was penalized ten times for 115 yards, the Rams seven times for 62 yards.

"I wouldn't blame it (losing) on the penalties, but there certainly were a lot of them," Cougar quarterback Steve Lindsley said. "It was just our inability to score."

Edwards praised CSU's balanced running and passing attack. "You have to compliment Colorado State. They prepared well, they executed well and they just took it to us," Edwards said.

BYU opened the scoring with their longest drive of the season, marching downfield in 16 plays that ate up over half of the first quarter. Lindsley rolled left and scampered the final yard for the touchdown.

The Cougars held Bartalo to 36 first-half rushing yards in building a 10-3 halftime lead.

But Bartalo & Co. came alive in the second half, scoring three touchdowns and trading leads with BYU before their final score, which came with 46 seconds in the game to clinch the victory for the Rams.

Bartalo had 95 yards rushing in the second half. Midway through the third quarter, he gained his 3,863rd career rushing yard to become the WAC's all-time leading rusher.

"It's the greatest win I've ever had — and I've been playing football since the fifth grade," Bartalo said after the game.

The Ram's final touchdown may not have given them the victory were it not for a controversial call by the Cougar coaches late in the game.

BYU found itself on CSU's 16-yard line following a 51-yard punt return by Mike O'Brien. With 5:34 left in the game, it looked like BYU would score another touchdown and go up by 10 points.

But on the first play from scrimmage, Lindsley was instructed to hit Mark Bellini in the endzone and the pass was intercepted by CSU's Jim King.

Colorado State then mounted a drive that not only gave them the winning touchdown, but took all but 40 seconds from the clock. The remaining time was not enough for BYU to score again.

CSU Coach Leon Fuller was ecstatic after the game. "This was a fantastic win for our entire program. BYU is an outstanding club and we knew in order to be competitive we would have to be able to run the ball. We were able to do that tonight."

Eagles hand Falcons their first defeat

By The Associated Press

Everything that was perfect turned imperfect for the Atlanta Falcons Sunday.

They took the NFL's top-ranked offense, 16-for-16 success ratio when they took the ball inside the 20-yard line and a 4-0 record into its Sunday game against Philadelphia.

But the Eagles stopped the Falcons from scoring when they went inside the 10 on their first two possessions and went onto win 16-0, Philadelphia's first shutout since 1981.

At Kansas City, Jim Plunkett fired the go-ahead touchdown pass and the Los Angeles Raiders, helped by a "communications breakdown" when the video replay official tried to disallow an earlier score, rallied to beat the Chiefs, 24-17.

Plunkett came off the bench to replace Marc Wilson, who suffered a hand injury.

At Foxboro, Mass., Tony Eason fired two touchdown passes and New England scored on five first-half possessions as the Patriots pounded Miami 34-7.

At Chicago, the Bears used two long pass plays from Jim McMahon to Keith Orto to shut out Minnesota 23-0.

At New Orleans, runningback George Rogers ran for 110 yards and a touchdown to help Washington defeat the Saints 14-6.

At Milwaukee, Boomer Esiason passed for two touchdowns and James Brooks ran for two more in a 27-point second quarter for Cincinnati. The Bengals handed Green Bay its fifth-straight loss by a score of 34-28.

At Pittsburgh, the Cleveland Browns used a four-yard touchdown run by Ernest Bryner to down the Steelers 27-24. The Browns snapped a 17-season jinx in Three Rivers Stadium.

At Pontiac, Mich., the Detroit Lions downed the Houston Oilers 24-13, despite 398 yards passing by Oilers quarterback Warren Moon.

At St. Louis, the New York Giants kept the Cardinals winless, posting a 13-6 victory.

At Anaheim, Calif., Eric Dickerson ran 42 yards for his second touchdown of the game, 2:16 into overtime, lifting Los Angeles Rams to a 26-20 win over Tampa Bay.

This was the second straight overtime loss for the Bucs.

At San Francisco, quarterback Jeff

Kemp and wide receiver Jerry Rice combined on three touchdown passes as the 49ers beat Indianapolis 35-15.

At Denver, the Broncos improved their record to 5-0 with a 29-14 win over the Dallas Cowboys.

At New York, Jet tight end Mickey Shuler slipped behind a Buffalo defender to catch a 36-yard TD pass from Ken O'Brien with 57 seconds left as the Jets rallied to a 14-13 win.

Nebraska blasts BYU in Marriott Center

BRICK DAVIS
Universe Sports Writer

Nearly 4,000 disappointed fans watched the 8th-ranked Nebraska Huskers upset the 4th-ranked Cougars Saturday in the first ever AA women's volleyball match played in the Marriott Center.

The Huskers made clear their intent to roll over the Cougars early in the match as they rocketed off to a 10-0 lead in the first game, finally taking the game by a score of 15-2.

The second game of the match started much the same way as the first, as the Huskers again jetted to a lead.

The Cougars were able to come within the deficit to make the ending exciting by bringing the score to 13-10 before Nebraska took that game 15-10.

The Cougars saw their only lead when they built an early 2-0 lead. However, Nebraska came back to eventually take that game and the match with a 15-11 score.

Jill Sanders, an outside hitter for BYU, said that she couldn't pinpoint exactly what went wrong on the court.

"I don't know what happened, except that maybe we were just too psyched up," said Sanders.

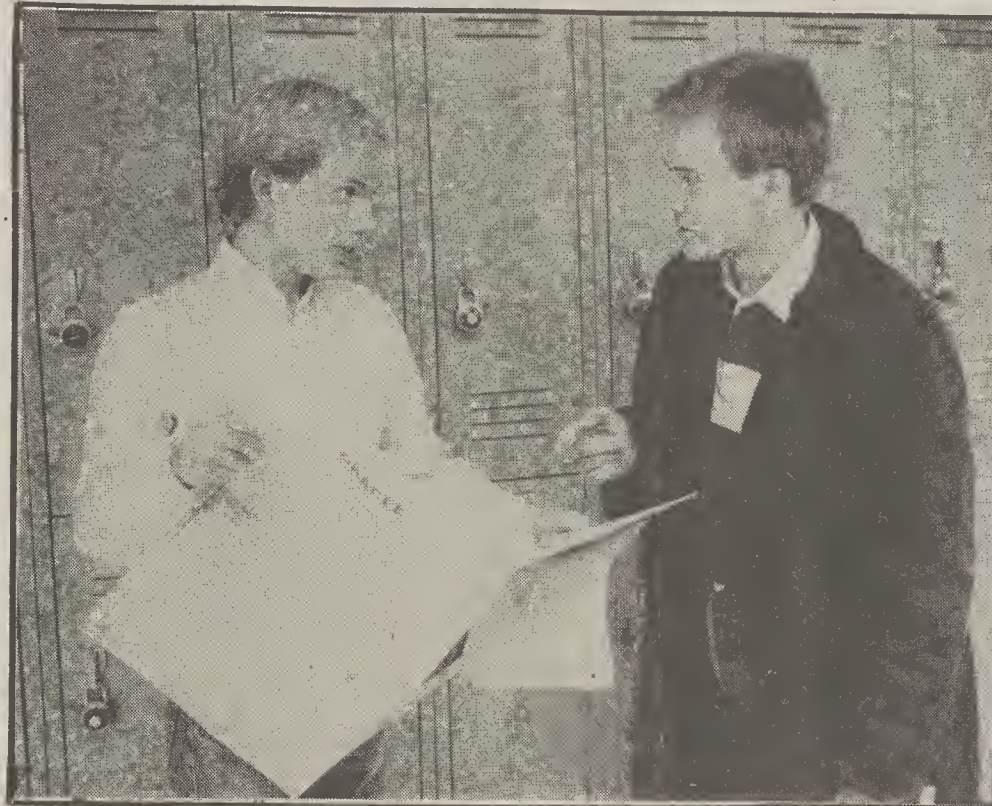

BYU Coach Elaine Michaelis agreed with Sanders saying that over-anticipation played a key role in her team's defeat, but also hailed the Nebraska team's offense as one of the best that she had ever seen.

The Nebraska team as a whole hit a .440 average while the BYU team scored 32 kills in 105 attempts for a .190 average. Sari Virtanen lead the Cougars with 11 kills just ahead of Sanders who scored eight.

Despite BYU's defeat at the hands of the Huskers, the Marriott Center crowd never seemed discouraged as their cheers seemed to move the entire building.

"The crowd stayed with us even when we were down," said Michaelis.

BYU will travel to Los Angeles Friday for the UCLA Invitational tournament. The tournament features a number of top 20 teams.

Mission stories entertain

By JEFFREY HAMPTON
Universe Staff Writer

You've all heard missionary stories. Like the one about the lady who asked the missionaries if they really had horns.

"Yeah," answered the elder. "As a matter of fact I just had mine clipped in Salt Lake just before I came out here."

"Really?" she asked. "Yeah," he returned. "You can feel the little bumps right here on my forehead."

So the lady put her hand on his forehead and said, "I don't feel anything."

"Not even a little bit silly?" said the elder.

William Wilson, chairman of the BYU English Department, has collected folklore from the mission field for more than 10 years. He said many of these stories come from actual experiences but have been changed during all the retellings. Some stories originate outside of the missionary experience, and details are changed to fit the missionary environment. And a few are made up, but Wilson believes that is rare.

"Missionaries use stories to cope with the pressure of the job."

His research has brought him to some general conclusions of why the teachers of truth tell the tales they do.

He has published a pamphlet called "On Being Human: The Folklore of Mormon Missionaries," which is available in the Harold B. Lee Library.

The stories here are from Wilson's collection as told to him by returned missionaries.

According to Wilson, there are four types of circumstances in which missionaries generate folklore "attempting to maintain a sense of stability in an unstable world."

One reason is to create unity and friendship among themselves, which is often directed toward the "greenie."

A story of a newly arrived elder to Norway gives an example. "Seasoned elders sat him down in a chair; they fixed a light above him, and they interrogated him about his moral life. When he volunteered the information that he had kissed a girl before, they let him know that he was completely washed up as far as his career goes in the mission. He would always be a junior companion, never be allowed to lead a discussion. And he believed the whole thing."

This may not seem very friendly to the new elder, but as soon as they have been "initiated" they can feel accepted and look forward to doing the same to another new elder in next month's batch of "greenies."

Wilson documented cases where elders never felt completely accepted in the mission field because they didn't have jokes played on them.

Missionaries also use stories to cope with the pressure of the job. One of the most famous stories that has "made the rounds" in several missions is about the elders who want to take a vacation for a while. Our story takes place in Africa.

"Two missionaries were stationed in Zambia (formerly Northern Rhodesia) and were doing their normal missionary work. After a while they decided to split and take off into the Congo.

Their chapel was only forty miles from the Congo, and Leopoldville, where all the revolutionary excitement was going on, was much further away.

"So they devised a plan — to make out their weekly reports to mission headquarters two weeks in advance and give them to their landlady, who in turn would send one in each week at an appointed time. By this means, the missionaries would have two free weeks to venture into the wilds of the Congo. All this would have gone well, except the stupid landlady sent the report for the second week in first and the report for the first week second. That spilled the tomatoes, and the mission president caught them."

A third reason for mission folklore is "to persuade themselves and their companions to conform to accepted standards of conduct," said Wilson.

Some of the stories describe the consequences imposed by the devil for misbehavior while most attempt to inspire missionaries to holy works, said Wilson. The stories give the message that if the missionary is righteous miracles will happen to them.

"There were two elders who were tracting, and one woman invited them into her home and said she was looking for a true church. And she fed them. They made an appointment to come back and (when) she saw who they were at the door, she invited them in and said, 'I want to be baptized,' without even talking to them. And they asked her why, and she said that she had read that the true servants of the Lord could eat poison things and they would not be harmed. And then she told them that what she had fed them last week had been poison."

"You drink the poison, and we'll raise you from the dead."

The last use of folklore is to encourage the missionary to believe he or she can win no matter the odds, even against a polished protestant minister.

"He said, 'Gentlemen, I have here a glass of poison. If you will drink this poison and remain alive, I will join your church, not only myself but my entire congregation.' And he said, 'If you won't drink this poison, well, then I'll conclude that you are false ministers of the gospel, because surely your Lord won't let you perish.'"

And so this put the missionaries in a kind of a bind, so they went off in a corner and got their heads together, and they thought, 'What on earth are we going to do?' So finally, after they decided, they went back over and approached the minister and said, 'Tell you what — we've got a plan.' They said, 'You drink the poison, and we'll raise you from the dead.'"

The next time you hear a crazy missionary story and wonder, "How serious can they be taking their work?" remember this observation by Wilson:

"In studying missionaries, we must keep always in mind that we are dealing with untried, indeed often unshaven, young men — nineteen and twenty — who in their first real encounters with the outside world are placed in circumstances that would try the mettle of the best men. In spite of J. Golden Kimball's quip that the church must be true, otherwise the missionaries would have destroyed it long ago, these young people function remarkably well. Few of them crack under the enormous pressure they face each day."

Run to the beat of Beethoven

The Utah Symphony's 1986-87 season gets off to a running start with the Third Annual Beat Beethoven 5K run Saturday, Oct. 18 at 10 a.m.

The race will be held following the orchestra's 28-day European tour — during the weekend of the season's first concerts.

The race starts and finishes at Symphony Hall.

The concept of the race is that runners will try to complete the 3.1 mile course before the conclusion of Ludwig von Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 (about 35 minutes).

Maestro Joseph Silverstein will provide beat-by-beat commentary as the radio station's mobile van leads the runners.

The Wasatch Front Road Runner's Club is managing the race and handling advance registration.

Applications are available in the October issue of Wasatch Runner, by writing to P.O. Box 8344, Salt Lake City, 84108, or by calling 254-2138 or 467-4203.

The pre-registration fee is $7 — or $9 on race day — and includes a t-shirt and free refreshments. There will be winners in 22 categories plus corporate team prizes.

Volunteers are needed the day of the race.

Show to focus on chic wear

LORIE FUNK
Universe Staff Writer

A fashion show, once staged on campus, will display the latest chic for Thursday at an off-campus location and in what its sponsors say is an atmosphere of greater professional and freedom.

The show, called Metro, is a continuation of a fashion event sponsored the past three semesters by AS-U.

Metro is now sponsored by a professional modeling agency, Publicity in Motion, and will be in the Excelsior Hotel, 101 W. 100 N., on Oct. 9 at 8:30 a.m. with a dance immediately follow-

Tickets are $8 and are currently on sale at Publicity in Motion, 32 W. Center, suite 228.

We wanted to capture a whole new feeling and give the show a different set," said Patty Herlihy, president of Publicity in Motion talent agency, director and coordinator of the show.

The Excelsior has a more professional atmosphere, and we have a lot more freedom to do what we want."

By having Metro at the Excelsior, non-BYU students had the opportunity to try out.

"In past Metros we could only have BYU students. This year we have models from 18 to 30 years old, which is something we've never done before," she said.

Herlihy recruited 63 models for this show "because of the great talent at the auditions," she said.

The new feeling of this Metro is the stronger theme within each set.

"Before we've done mostly just straight runway modeling.

"This year the clothing style, choreography and music all relate to each other," said Herlihy.

"There's not just one mood throughout the whole program."

"Robert Wilford, our co-director and choreographer for Metro spent all last summer working and traveling with Estee Lauder, and picked up a lot of new moves for us," she said.

Herlihy said the highlights of the show include evening gowns designed by Alberto, more lighting and laser effects and more extreme music.

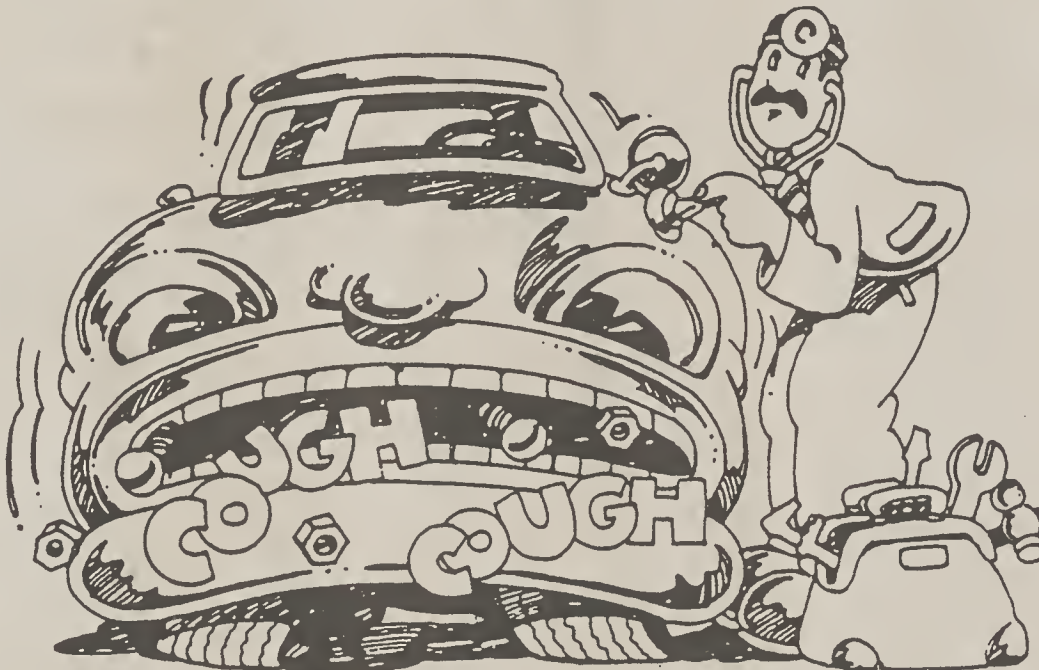

"This is definitely the best Metro yet. It's going to be a whole entertainment evening," she said.

The same standards of dress and hair will be enforced as in previous shows except for the evening gowns and the male models who have long hair.

"Tickets are are biggest concern right now because the Excelsior's ballroom can only hold 800 people, and we've had an audience of 1,200 to 1,400 in the past. So they will be going quickly, I'm sure," said Herlihy.

An 'unofficial guide' details BYU lifestyle

LORIE FUNK
Universe Staff Writer

For most students, college life is only books and grades, but parties, pizzas and fun times with friends. Too often, however, another Saturday night goes by and they find themselves saying, "There isn't anything to do tonight."

The Unofficial Guide to Life at BYU, a new ready reference guide compiled by two BYU students, is now available for students in this format.

The book lists phone numbers, not only of pizza places, but of the math department as well. It gives restaurant reviews, intramural sports schedules, bus information and directions to resorts in Utah.

The book has information on a vast variety of student oriented activities, both on and off campus, and in Salt Lake City. The topics include clubs, organizations, the great outdoors, transportation, religion, services and shopping.

The guide began with two BYU students, Glenn Boschetto and Stan Christensen.

"We were at Harvard during the summer of 1985. At that time Harvard Student Agencies was publishing their 'Unofficial Guide to Life at Harvard.' We got the idea from them," said Boschetto, a senior majoring in economics and philosophy in San Francisco, Calif. "Harvard depended us tremendously."

Health expert disagrees with FDA about diseases linked to sugar intake

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading sugar critic said Wednesday that the Food and Drug Administration displayed "real ignorance" in a study that gave the sweetener a relatively low bill of health.

"The FDA missed the forest for the trees," said Michael Jacobson, executive director of the Center for Science in the Public Interest. "I think the FDA report will undercut nutritionists who emphasize that sugar does nothing but add empty calories to the diet." Jacobson referred to an FDA report that concluded sugar is not linked to any disease but tooth decay.

A sugar industry group held a news conference Wednesday to express the hope that it would help knock down the "myth and misinformation" that sugar causes heart disease, hyperactivity and a host of other maladies.

Teaching children to work important for all parents

LYNN DANIEL WELLER
Lifestyle Editor

patriarchal blessings and the necessity of teaching children to work are two of the topics addressed at today morning's session of general conference for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

President Gordon B. Hinckley, counselor in the First Presidency, spoke first — addressing in all many of the arguments used by the church. He emphasized divinity and physical existence of Jesus Christ and the separate and distinct nature of the Godhead. "Jesus' revelation that God is a spirit does not deny that he has a body than the statement that I am a spirit that I have a body."

President Hinckley said the Godhead is made up of three distinct beings, "but they are one in purpose and intent."

Elder Neal A. Maxwell of the LDS Council of Twelve Apostles, spoke of the importance of scriptures and the necessity of studying them, saying "the holy scriptures represent mankind's spiritual memory. One of the unique features of the Living Church of Jesus Christ is its ever-expanding body of fundamental spiritual knowledge about man's identity and purpose."

He said that eventually the record of the lost tribes would be revealed and would be a third witness for Christ in latter days.

Elder Joseph B. Wirthlin, the newest member of the Council of Twelve, spoke next. He talked about his new appointment in the church, saying "I was in deep shock as I left President Benson's office yesterday. . . I still am."

He gave a report on his recent experience in Europe, saying that the LDS Church is growing and is strong in that area of the world. "There has been a 33 percent increase in the number of convert baptisms in the past two years."

Elder L. Tom Perry of the Council of Twelve, spoke on the necessity of teaching children to work. "Teaching children the joy of honest labor is one of the greatest of all gifts you can bestow upon them. I am convinced that one of the reasons for the breakup of so many couples today is the failure of parents to teach and train sons in their responsibilities to provide and care for their families; to enjoy the challenge this responsibility brings," Elder Perry said.

He urged members to avoid consumer debt. "Work is a discipline; something we must learn to do, and do well before we can expect to receive tangible rewards from our labors."

Finally, President Thomas S. Monson, a counselor in the First Presidency, spoke on the importance of patriarchal blessings — likening them to the Liahona, the compass that guided Lehi and his family through the desert in the Book of Mormon, Another Testament for Jesus Christ.

"A patriarchal blessing contains chapters from your book of eternal possibilities. (It) is your passport to peace in this life. It is a Liahona of light to guide you unerringly to your heavenly home," said Pres. Monson.

Pres. Benson extols modern scriptures

President Ezra Taft Benson told members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints during Sunday afternoon session that the vision of the Book of Mormon is to show the things which God has done, in the covenants of the gospel and to witness the world Jesus is Christ.

Calling the Book of Mormon the stone of the LDS religion, President Benson pointed to the book as a fulfillment of ancient prophecy, and urged all to read it "again and again."

President Benson also said the Doctrine and Covenants joins the Book of Mormon in its divine mission.

Together these two great works of scripture bring great blessings to this generation," he said. "The Doctrine and Covenants is the only book in the world that has a preface written by the Lord himself."

Anyone who carefully and prayerfully searches the pages of these books will find comfort, counsel, guidance and the quiet power to improve their lives," said President Benson.

Elder Russell M. Nelson stated joy is a part of our divine destiny, "to experience joy in the morning comes our special challenge."

Elder Nelson listed three factors needed to experience true joy. "You must feel good about the people with whom you live and work... You must feel good about yourself, and possibly most important, you must feel good about your relation to God and sincerely love him."

Bishop Henry B. Eyring, first counselor in the Presiding Bishopric, stressed the importance of the spark of faith. "The spark won't grow brighter until we live the gospel," he said. "I pray that we may never cease while we live to offer the opportunity to choose those blessings to those in whom the spark of faith may yet be fanned to flame."

Elder Franklin D. Richards, a member of the First Quorum of Seventy, stressed the importance of temple work. "It is important to realize the blessings of the temple are not limited to any special class, but are available to all worthy Church members properly accredited," he said.

Elder Richards said that we do work in the temples for the living, for the dead, and a retreat, "providing an opportunity to receive inner peace, inspiration, guidance and frequently a solution to problems that vex our daily lives," he said.

Elder F. Burton Howard, a member of the First Quorum of Seventy, said it is possible for people to return to faith from doubt. "It is possible for those who have ceased to pray to pray again, and it is possible for those who are lost to find their way through the dark and come home," he said.

Elder A. Theodore Tuttle said we need to be taught that believing is seeing. "We cannot survive without increased faith in the Lord Jesus Christ," he said. To develop faith within our families, we need to recount the examples of faith that have happened in our heritage, our people, and our families, he said.

Conference translated in 27 tongues

By REBECCA THOMPSON
Universe Staff Writer

This is the 25th year that the sessions of the General Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints have been translated into foreign languages.

Since 1961, when stakes were organized in Holland, West Germany and Mexico, volunteer interpreters have made visitors from various parts of the world feel welcome by translating the conference sessions.

Visitors who speak Cambodian, Cantonese, Czech, Danish, Finnish, French, German, Greek, Hmong, Indonesian, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Laotian, Mandarin, Navajo, Norwegian, Polish, Portuguese, Russian, Samoan, Spanish, Swedish, Tahitian, Thai, Tongan or Vietnamese were able hear the proceedings of the 156th semi-annual conference in their native language.

Special sections of the Church Office Building, the North Visitors Center, the Salt Palace, the Seventeenth Ward and the Tabernacle were set aside for those hearing specific languages.

Interpreters stood in the Church Office Building and Tabernacle. Their voices were transmitted to visitors who were wearing special headphones which connected them to the interpreters.

Members and visitors who are deaf or hard of hearing could see the conference in sign language in the Church Office Building.

"The first consideration of the Church is the stake presidents and their counselors from around the world who do not speak English," said Justus Ernst, German supervisor of translation. "The visitors are the second and the people living around the world are the third."

Those members who did not get to hear conference because the transmissions were not received in their area can get videotapes of the sessions through their wards or branches.

The videotapes are produced in Danish, Finnish, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Norwegian, Portuguese, Spanish and Swedish.

In honor of this anniversary, a special dinner for the translators will be Tuesday with Gordon B. Hinckley, first counselor in the First Presidency.
